Manning has the nucleus of a fine club in Delehanty. Wolverton, Orth, Townsend, Carrick, Patten, Coughlin, and Lee, and if they are retained the Senators should give a good account of themselves if the additional players to be secured are at all in the same fielding and hitting class.

Manning 8 plans for next season are so well understood locally that it would be a suicidal policy to abandon them in favor of a plan that would mean that Washington would only have a team of the second division class.

ton would only have a team of the second division class.

Loftus, Postal, Johnson, and the others interested in the Senators will enjoy comparative smooth sailing if they give this city a good team, and doubtless Manning will be forgotten by many of the attendants before the next season is a few weeks old providing the Senators play winning ball, but if the new owners of the club furnish an aggregation that will continue to keep Washington near the bottom of the ladder there will be any number of remonstrances and the local baseball franchise will hardly be worth the possession. Its all up to Postal, Loftus, et al. now, and if they make good they will have a valuable property. valuable property.

"Manning bad an idea that Washington must have a pennant winner at any cost, and in signing a lot of stars from the National League he was foreing the other American League clubs to do likewiss, in fact to go him a little better if possible, as the best clubs must be located on the fighting grounds.

"Manning and Johnson conflicted in their ideas until the Washington man was ont for some one in sympathy with his ideas. Those who refuse to follow are soon outside the breastworks and Manning found himself in hot water.

"The only club not inside the breastworks is Baltimore. This club stands the same in the American that Brooklyn does in the National League, and is never let into state secrets."

President Killilea, of the Milwaukee club, said recently that while he had given an option on the franchise to St. Louis capitalists, he had placed the figure so high that he did not expect an acceptance. He stated that he expected the Brewers, re-enforced by the St. Louis players recently signed by the American League, would represent Milwaukee in the American League for at least another season to demonstrate whether the patronage in that city would be sufficient to warrant the muthay incident to placing a high-class aggregation in the field, and that pride in the welfare of Milwaukee had actuated him solely in his efforts to retain the team there. A well-defined report comes from Cleveland that the American League club of that city has lost the services of Third Baseman Bradley to the National League, Baseman Bradley to the National League, and it is believed that the Chicago club of the National League has secured the great third baseman's signature to a contract for 1902. During the past a wason Bradley has made an enviable record at the third corner of the diamond, and his loss to Cleveland would be almost 'treparable.

Everything will be in readiness by the opening day, in as far as the main features are concerned. Some minor details of improvements, such as painting, grading and repairs, may have to lary over until after the meeting. But the grandstand, betting ring, cafes, etc., will all be complete for the opening, which eccurs one week from today. The grandstand is almost finished; the concreting will be completed tomorrow, and on Thursday all the seats will be in position. In fact, one-third of the scats are stready in position.
